INTRODUCTION.

The first edition of this Bibliography was published in 1895, forming pages 677-1236 of the Annual Report of the American Historical Association for 1895. The present edition takes in publications of historical societies down to and as far as possible through 1905. For the new material the collections in the Library of Congress and the principal libraries of Boston have been drawn upon. In some cases the galley proofs have been submitted to officials of the societies concerned, who have verified the titles and suggested additions.

The compiler is in a superlative degree indebted to Samuel A. Green, LL. D., librarian of the Massachusetts Historical Society, and to J. H. Tuttle, assistant librarian. The personal interest shown by both was a most pleasurable experience. The publications received by the Massachusetts Historical Society have been carefully preserved and catalogued, even to the most fugitive leaflet. The catalogue of this collection was freely used and the result was a great gain in the completeness of the Bibliography.

Mr. W. P. Greenlaw, librarian of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, is also entitled to the highest appreciation for his aid and courtesy extended personally to my assistant.

The librarian of the American Antiquarian Society and the librarian of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania read the galley proofs of the titles of publications of their respective societies, a service which it is a pleasure to acknowledge.

Mr. Thomas Hamilton Murray read the proof for the American Irish Historical Society.

Mr. Charles A. Flagg, of the Library of Congress, who has done much toward completing the sets of historical society publications in the Library, has given most generous and valuable aid.

The arrangement is first by States, then alphabetical by name of society.

The immediate work of compilation has been done, under my direct supervision, by Miss Grace Gardner Griffin.

Statistics of towns in Massachusetts; Heights, latitudes, and longitudes of eminences; Statistics of population; Statistics of taxation in Massachusetts. By J. B. Felt. Issued in three parts; published in 1843, 1845, and 1847, respectively.

Part I of Vol. II of the Collections, comprising Memoir of the life and character of George Cheyne Shattuck, by Edward Jarvis, pp. 1-7; Statistics of comb making in Leominster, 1852, by C. C. Field, M. D., pp. 8-16; Memoir of American discoveries, colonization, commerce, and fishery, from Newfoundland to Florida, both inclusive, down to 1630, by Joseph B. Felt, LL. D., pp. 17-134; The financial revulsion of 1857, by Samuel H. Walley, pp. 135-160; Letters on the money crisis of 1857, by Nathan Appleton, pp. 161-175; The connection of occupation with longevity, by Edward Jarvis, p. 176; The increase of human life, by Edward Jarvis, pp. 177-231, was printed in sheets, but never printed as a volume, as the sheets were burned in 1872 at the printing office where they were stored. The following were printed separately from the same forms as the above, but independently paged: Dr. Jarvis's "Memoir of Dr. Shattuck" and Walley's "Financial revulsion." Dr. Jarvis's "Increase of human life" was issued with a paper cover in pamphlet form with the paging of the Collections, and 1,000 copies were printed by the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company with independent paging and a title-page. The Massachusetts Historical Society possesses a copy of the sheets of pp. 1-136, the Boston Athenæum of pp. 1-176, and the Boston Public Library of pp. 1-16, 176-231, of this unpublished volume. These probably constitute all that was saved of the same. (800)

CONNECTICUT HISTORICAL SOCIETY. Collections. Vol. III. Hartford: Published for the Society, 1895.

8vo, pp. (8), 340.

Contents: Officers, 1874; Preface; Some helps for the Indians; A catechism, by the Rev. Abraham Pierson, reprinted from the original edition, Cambridge, 1658, with an introduction, by J. Hammond Trumbull; Will and Doom, or the miseries of Connecticut by and under an usurped and arbitrary power, written by Gershom Bulkeley, 1692, with an introduction and notes, by Charles J. Hoadly; Extracts of letters to Rev. Thomas Prince, containing historical notices of sundry towns [in Connecticut]; A memoir for the history of Connecticut, by Roger Wolcott, 1759; Index.

The third volume of the collections was prepared for publication in 1875, but a fire at the printer's, in April, 1875, destroyed the entire edition, with the exception of one hundred copies of Pierson's Helps, which had been separately printed and delivered, and one set of the sheets of Bulkeley's Will and Doom, which was in the editor's hands. The present issue is made up of the same material that the first was to have contained, with the addition of Wolcott's Memoir. The notes to Bulkeley's Will and Doom have undergone some changes in this edition.

The period covered by this volume was signalized by the capture of Crown Point and Ticonderoga, the surrender of Quebec in September, 1759, followed in 1760 by the reduction of Montreal and the establishment of British rule over Canada. The internal affairs of Maryland during this period were characterized by factious efforts on the part of the lower house, with the purpose of discrediting the proprietary government in England, to the end that the government should fall to the Crown by revocation of the charter.

4to, pp. viii, 586.

"The present volume, being the second of the Provincial Court series, continues the record without any manifest break down to 1658. The rule of the commissioners and Parliament, after the battle on the Severn and surrender of Stone, is marked by proceedings against the Catholics, several of whom made confession of their faith in open court, and are fined, ostensibly on the ground of complicity with Governor Stone in his endeavors to hold the province for the Proprietary." (1982)

Large 8vo, pp. (6), 573.

"The present volume continues the proceedings and acts of the assembly from April, 1684, to June, 1692. The continuity is broken by the revolutionary outbreak of 1689, no journal of the Association's assembly having been preserved. To fill this gap to some extent we have inserted copies of documents preserved in the Public Record Office, London, but for fuller details the council records must be consulted. This revolutionary assembly, which handed over the province to the King, was succeeded by one elected under the new order of things, and presided over by Lionel Copley, the first royal governor, which, among other fundamental changes, repealed all existing statutes in mass, and promulgated a new code, which is here given in full." 8vo, pp. 12.

Seventy-five copies privately reprinted from the Proceedings, April, 1886. "From a manuscript presented to Harvard College library in 1850. A journal nearly identical with this was published by the same editor in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register for April, 1852, as the journal of Joseph Ware, of Needham, Mass. Later evidence shows that neither Ebenezer Wild nor Joseph Ware, of Needham, were in Arnold's army, and that the original of these two journals was most probably written by Ebenezer Tolman. For discussion of the question of authorship, see Justin H. Smith's 'Arnold's march from Cambridge to Quebec,' 1903, pp. 44-51."
